IVAN WOODS

The late Ivan Woods designed interiors and products for over 30 years. His work drew inspiration from his travels and interior architecture training in Perth, Australia. Working across projects within the UK, US, Germany and Italy, Ivan specialised in hotel and workspace design.

Ivan developed the idea for Bomba in response to the need to provide an informal, soft seating option that was inherently modular in nature, but with a contemporary lounge aesthetic. Creating a refined and strong product with Bomba's unusual amount of joints was intricate and difficult work.

Bomba features soft, angled volumes floating on polished aluminium or Oak legs. The legs are available in polished, black-coated, grey-coated and white-coated aluminium. The Oak legs and arms are available in a selection of stains or paints, each variation providing a unique aesthetic.

Much like its namesake, the Bomba – a Latin American musical style where the dancer's movements dictate the beat of the drums – Bomba Sofa is led by the user's requirements.

Bomba Tables harmoniously integrate with the Bomba Sofa system. An elegant family of occasional tables, these serve to independently complement a range of seating scenarios. Designed by Ivan Woods, the round, square or rectangular low floating tops sit upon distinctive tapered legs in timber or aluminum to create soft, contemporary profiles. Suiting various personalities, tops are available in paint, veneer and stains in solid Oak, while aluminum legs can be polished or powder coated.

Configurations

Bomba Sofa is a part of a system that includes individual pieces of furniture that create stand alone, linear and corner configurations. Depending on the configuration selection, the Bomba Sofa system can take an either formal or casual attitude across small, medium and large environments.
